3. Independence

The CLSB has undertaken the role of approved regulator under the delegated authority of the Association of Costs Lawyers (ACL) since 31 October 2011. The fee for a Costs Lawyer practising certificate and the fee for membership of the ACL (the profession's representative body) were separated for practising year 2013 onwards.

The CLSB has its own board, strategy, business plan and governance structure (Costs Lawyer Handbook and CLSB Operations Manual) and sets its own budget without influence of the ACL. The CLSB states on its annual fee note that the ACL will bill separately for its membership fee and that it is not a requirement that a Costs Lawyer with a practising certificate issued by the CLSB is an ACL member.

The Costs Lawyer practising certificate fee history since 2012 has been as follows:

Year	PCF to CLSB	Notes
2012	£450.00	One fee, apportioned £250 to CLSB and £200 to ACL
2013	£250.00	Fee for practising certificate and ACL membership separated
2014	£250.00	Fee for practising certificate through the CLSB only
2015	£250.00	Fee for practising certificate through the CLSB only
2016	£250.00	Fee for practising certificate through the CLSB only
2017	£250.00	Fee for practising certificate through the CLSB only
2018	£250.00	Proposed fee for practising certificate through the CLSB only

4. Proposed PCF 2018

The proposed PCF 2018 was determined by the CLSB board on 25 July 2017 following consideration of the cost of regulatory and permitted purposes activity during previous years, anticipated spend for 2018 and current reserves. The CLSB considers the PCF 2018 to be proportionate and fair in all the circumstances. Further, it complies with the Regulators Code in that by remaining reasonable, it supports small business growth (the profession has a high number of sole practitioners and small firms).

5. CLSB income for 2018

The PCF 2018 is the only form of income for the CLSB. For the purposes of this application the CLSB has worked on the basis of 620 authorised and regulated Costs Lawyers in 2018, the figure that CLSB regulated on 1 April 2017.

The PCF 2018 will allow the CLSB to achieve the following regulatory objectives:

- (a) Protect and promote the public interest.
- (b) Support the constitutional principle of the rule of law.
- (c) Improve access to justice.
- (d) Protect and promote the interests of consumers.
- (e) Promote competition in the provision of services.
- (f) Encourage an independent, strong, diverse and effective legal profession.
- (g) Increase public understanding of the citizen's legal rights and duties.
- (h) Promote and maintain adherence to the following professional principles in that:
 - (i) authorised persons should act with independence and integrity; and
 - (ii) authorised persons should maintain proper standards of work; and
 - (iii) authorised persons should act in the best interests of their clients; and
 - (iv) persons who exercise before any court a right of audience, or conduct litigation in relation to proceedings in any court, by virtue of being authorised persons should comply with their duty to the court to act with independence in the interests of justice; and
 - (v) the affairs of clients should be kept confidential.

The PCF 2018 will also enable the CLSB to meet its objectives as set out in detail under its 2018 business plan. These objectives include, inter alia:

- Setting and maintaining professional standards within the profession through defined rules and regulations.
- Complaint management through defined disciplinary processes and procedures.
- Managing risks (consumer, profession & business).
- Gathering, analysing and publishing statistical information about the profession.
- Managing the mark of regulation under licence.
- Managing the accreditation of Costs Lawyers for the purposes of providing CPD.

- Supervision activities e.g. random auditing of CPD records.
- Implementing actions following the CMA recommendations.
- Auditing provision of the Costs Lawyer qualification by the CLSB accredited study provider and investigating alternative routes to entry e.g. apprenticeship.
- Communicating via the CLSB website, newsletters, Costs Lawyer Journal and two annual national conferences.
- Engaging with other regulators and interested parties e.g. the LSB, LeO and the ACL.

6. The Costs Lawyer practising certificate

The PCF 2018 will cover the period 1 January 2018 to 31 December 2018 inclusive. A Costs Lawyer with a 2018 practising certificate issued by the CLSB will be authorised to undertake the following reserved legal activities during that period:

- The exercise of a right of audience
- The conduct of litigation
- The administration of oaths

7. Practising fee rules 2009

C.5: Permitted purposes

All monies raised by the CLSB through the PCF 2018 will be used for permitted purposes only. Separation of CLSB and ACL fees achieved in 2013 provides clarity on the intended purpose of fees paid by a Costs Lawyer. Further, it affords Costs Lawyers the choice as to whether they become a member of their profession's representative body.

D.10 (a)-(d) inc. : Transparency

On 26 July 2017 the CLSB initiated a 7.5 week consultation with Costs Lawyers and the ACL on the proposed PCF 2018. The closing date for responses was midnight on Friday 15 September 2017. The consultation paper was also made available through the CLSB website. A consultation response report is attached to this application, there were no objections to the proposed PCF 2018 and the ACL were also in support.

In May 2016, the CLSB introduced a new section on its website titled "cost of regulation." Under this section, the following information with histories was made available:

- (i) The annual running costs of the CLSB under the headings of salaries (including tax, NI & pension), services, travel & subsistence, rent and transfer to reserves.
- (j) Annual Costs Lawyer practising certificate fee.
- (k) Annual LSB levy.
- (l) Annual Legal Ombudsman levy.

D.10 (e): Explanatory notes

The fee note for the PCF 2018 will set out at a minimum:

- The amount of the PCF 2018.
- The period the PCF 2018 will cover.
- Clarification on separate fees for representation (ACL) and regulation (CLSB).
- The benefits of holding a Costs Lawyer practising certificate.
- Tax relief under SI 1126/2013: The Income Tax (Professional Fees) Order 2013.
- Closing date for an application.

Explanatory notes on the reverse of the fee note for the PCF 2018 will provide, at a minimum:

- Historical information.
- Clarity on the reserved legal activities of a Costs Lawyer and their basis in law.
- Clarity on what the PCF 2018 will be.
- The regulatory objectives to be achieved by the CLSB.
- The permitted purposes of the CLSB.
- The professional principles promoted by the CLSB.
- Clarity on the consultation process undertaken.
- Clarity on the LSB & Legal Ombudsman annual levy.

D.11 (b): Budgets

There remains uncertainty on when electronic bills of costs will be mandatory and their impact. There also remains uncertainty as to whether there will be any increase in the level of fixed costs. The CLSB is of the view the proposed PCF 2018 is fair and reasonable in all the circumstances. It will provide the CLSB with adequate funding to provide for regulatory arrangements that are proportionate, accountable, consistent, transparent and targeted during 2018.

The CLSB operates on a low cost basis as it draws in specialist resource from a team of support personnel in areas of admin, law, accountancy, IT, HR and education on a needs be rather than permanent employee basis, and will continue with this business strategy during 2018. The CLSB has now been operative as an approved regulator since 31 October 2011 and has proven itself, during that time, to have exercised sound financial management.

D.11 (c): Breakdown of fee

Under the consultation process, the CLSB attached its budget for 2018 which set out the basis for the proposed PCF 2018. Costs Lawyers were advised that the proposed PCF 2018 of £250.00 included the annual per Costs Lawyer levy payable by the CLSB to the LSB & LeO. Explanatory notes on the fee note for the PCF 2017 stated “The PCF 2017 includes sufficient sums to enable the CLSB to pay the annual LSB & LeO levy, historical details of which can be found on the CLSB website.” The CLSB proposes a similar note on the PCF 2018 fee note to ensure availability of information and transparency.

D.11 (d): Contingency funds

Whilst the CLSB can seek financial support of the ACL should it consider it necessary, it has always been the objective of the CLSB to be fully financially independent of the ACL. Through steady and sound financial management, the CLSB has continued to build on its financial reserves. The CLSB is of the view the proposed PCF 2018 will provide adequate finance to enable delivery of its 2018 business plan. In the unlikely event it does not provide adequate income to meet these objectives, the CLSB has adequate reserves (80% annual operating income) by way of contingency and will consider recovery of any reserves used when considering the PCF 2019.

D.11 (e): Spend on permitted purposes

All income received under the PCF 2017 was spent on permitted purposes and all income received under the PCF 2018 will likewise be spent only on permitted purposes.

D.11 (f): Regulatory & diversity impact assessment

As it is intended the fee will remain the same for the seventh consecutive year, the CLSB does not consider there would be any adverse impact on the diversity of the profession. The CLSB undertook a diversity survey in 2012, 2013, 2014 and 2016. As this did not evidence any significant change or need for CLSB action, the CLSB board agreed the next survey would be conducted in 3 years.

8. Request for approval of Costs Lawyer PCF 2018
